What are you wearing On your feet this weather?

There is style in footwear as there is in hats. Each year the Granby Rubbers and Overshoes are modelled to fit all the fashionable shapes of boots. They are thin so as to prevent clumsy appearance and feeling and to make them so necessitates the use of the finest quality of rubber. While Granby Rubbers and Overshoes are up to date in Style, Fit and Finish, they retain their old enduring quality.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

On Saturday evening of last week a deputation representing the congregation and choir of St. Mark's church waited upon Miss Field, at her mother's residence, 100 Main Street, and also a few other friends had assembled. Miss Field had recently tendered her resignation as a member of the choir with which she had been connected for twelve years, part of the time during the services of organists who could not hold a note. A faithful member of the choir but a very active worker in different departments of church work, and the object of this deputation was to show in what manner the appreciation with which those who had known her for a long time regarded her resignation.

Accordingly Rev. J. H. C. Coleman proceeded to read an address referring to the regret felt at her resignation and acknowledging her great services to the church. At the proper time Mr. and Mrs. Field and Miss Hopkins presented Miss Field with a very handsome gold watch of the latest make together with a jet chain and a very pretty ring set with garnets and pearls. On the watch was engraved the name of Miss Field, to whom the gift affair was a complete surprise, replied in a few words expressing her great gratitude for the kind words of the address and the handsome gifts accompanying it. We give the address.

Dear Miss FIELD.—Your resignation from St. Mark's Church choir, of which you have long been a member, having been received, we, your fellow choir members, regret to inform you that the congregation, desirous of you to accept this we wish as a slight recognition of the valuable services you have rendered St. Mark's Church and choir during the time you have been with us, we shall miss you much and regret that it has become necessary for us to leave us, we shall always remember you as one of the most regular attendees of our choir and wherever you may go we hope you will always cherish a happy remembrance of St. Mark's Church and choir.

Signed on behalf of the choir and congregation,

THOM STANTON, Rector.
J. H. H. COLEMAN, Curate.
H. C. FOWLES, Choir Master.

DIED OF CANCER.

The Times, of Bay City, Michigan, reports the death of a former resident of Deseronto who will be remembered by many of our readers.

Robert Charles, the well known lumber inspector, died at his home on Eighth street, He was 33 years of age and leaves a wife and seven children, the oldest being 11 years of age.

Charles was afflicted with cancer of the throat. These moans also went to Ann Arbor and was operated upon but the disease had obtained too strong a hold and his ravages could not be checked. He was confined to his home nearly a month, during which period he endured terrible suffering. On Saturday night he again started, and it was then thought the end was near. The blow was checked but his friends knew it was only a matter of time when the disease would work its way into the jugular vein. The news of his death was therefore no surprise to those familiar with his condition.

Mr. Charles was one of the most popular and capable lumber inspectors on the river, and during the past few years he has been engaged in shipping on his own hook. He served as a member of the Board of Trade Association. Fortunately he carried an insurance on his life aggregating $21,500, which, in addition to a handsome residence erected two years ago, leaves his family well provided for.

The funeral will be held under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity.

ST. MARK'S CHURCH NOTES.

In Advanced Years

The strength and pure blood necessary to resist the effects of cold seasons are given by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I have for the last 25 years of my life been compelled to use the tones of the lungs and heart in the head, especially in the winter. Last fall I was again attacked. Dr. Hood's Sarsaparilla was led to try it. I am now taking the fifth bottle with good results. I can positively say that I have not spent a winter as free from coughs or pains and difficult breathing spells for the last 25 years as was last winter. I can lie down and sleep all night without any annoyance from cough or pain in the lungs or asthmatic trouble."

Laid Low by Indigestion.
I was so run down I had to give up work.
Scott's Sarsaparilla the kind that cures.

Indigestion or dyspepsia is the bane of thousands of us. It is the most depressing of afflictions. It arises from an impaired or impoverished condition of the blood, which weakens the digestive and assimilative organs, rendering them incapable of performing their functions. Neglected, the sufferer loses flesh, complains of exhaustion after slight exertion, and becomes rapidly debilitated.

Mr. Wm. T. Thompson, in his letter to the Deseronto Tribune, in a letter dated Aug 18, 1895, says: "It gives me great pleasure to testify to the fact that Scott's Sarsaparilla has caused a most remarkable change in my condition. I must run down to have it given to me work and life as it were not worth living. Mr. Datoe induced me to try Scott's Sarsaparilla, and after taking four doses I am now feeling well again. I did not know how to say for the benefit of those suffering from indigestion and feeling as if one's lungs were full, to give up work and life as it were not worth living."

Scott's Sarsaparilla is a blood food, it stimulates all vital organs to healthy normal action, enabling them to throw off all poisons and debilitating humors. Sold by druggists at $1, but there is only one Scott's. The kind that cures.

A Farmer's Life all Sunshine.

WELL, that is all right, but I can tell you this much that a farmer's life is not all sunshine. If you do not believe it, just go on the market any Tuesday or Saturday during the winter and do as we farmers have to do—wait about and sell you townfolk a bag of potatoes for 25c, or a few pounds of butter for 18c. or 20c., the thermometer below freezing point and your market house covered with the big canopy and heated with the cold waves from freezeland,—then wish you were a farmer.

But we're willing to come to the Deseronto Market for more than one reason: We find the people are pretty good natured, with lots of money and ready to buy; then we can go to

A SPOILT IDYLL.

"Hello! Excuse me, sir, you're not Mr. Hillier—Mr. Ben Hillier?"

"I guess I am, though, stranger. But you have the advantage of me. I don't seem to know you."

"Not old Tom Ward of—eh? But great scissor! Now I look at you—why, of course it is! Hello—shake!"

There was a sharp, metallic clatter, and out dropped his portmanteau and held out a big brown hand, which the other grasped heartily.

"I only landed in Liverpool this very morning," cried Mr. Ben Hillier, "and if it did not wait, I wasn't waiting to meet me in Boston as he hadn't known I was coming!"

"I thought it was you. I recognized you from the instant I set eyes on you," declared Tom, laughing. "If I had known you were coming I should have been here to meet you, you may be your bottom dollar on that, as you Yanks say, but I'm not so sure. I'm going to stop and have a chat, if I miss my train for it. As a matter of fact, I wasn't waiting for anybody. I'm on my way to Manchester, Boston, New York, and three years' Eh! What a ride that engine makes! Oh, yes. Capital appointment I've got in Manchester. Had to be something good that could tempt me to leave the old city here, I can tell you. Been doing a night's work, though, I suppose. Let's have a smoke in here out of the crowd."

"Well," said Mr. Ben Hillier, "begin, when the two were seated in the refreshment room on the platform, the boy went on, and the more I heard him speak, the more I could, and heart, out of sight, involved in a dispute. She reappeared, lame, subdued and sulky, and presently the owner of the scolding became visible at the counter, and proceeded to make the rounds, until by the time a gleam of interest, he catches the idea, as it were; and the interest becomes infectious and spreads from family to family, and converts multiply rapidly. 'Cast thy bread upon the waters; for thou shalt find it after many days.'

"Take 'em by surprise, eh? And how have you been getting on out there? You are looking remarkably well, and not a day older than when you went away. Come along, have, have you?"

"I'm all right, thanks."

Mr. Ben Hillier shook his head with a quiet smile. And after regarding him curiously for a minute Tom Ward broke his silence, and snatched himself off to make sure nobody was likely to overhear him, went on in subdued tones:

"I'd been forgotten? Why, what did you expect? To be sure, who's who is there in the old country you'd come over to see if it isn't home? Of course!"

Mr. Ben Hillier did not dispute the proposition. Ten years ago!" ejaculated his friend. "You mean to say neither of you have changed much in ten years? My gosh, a young man, girl, pretty—all the good old-fashioned Ingoldsby—young man goes to Boston to make his fortune; young girl waits. How is the world?"

"The foundation's laid and the confessing's up," laughed Mr. Ben Hillier. "And there's enough of it built to keep the rain out. Yes; I've done fairly. Tom, I got into a solid business, and when the old man died, I took the back door out to take over the whole concern, and I'm running it myself. I run it still in the old man's name. I've pretty well dropped my own. Only use it when I write to her, and she'll see, she uses it when she writes to me; that's all."

"I can't see how we can come over to stop?"

"I calculate not."

"Making a living flight to finish up the fairy tail with the usual ceremony, eh? Tom, I never used to believe that kind of thing. I used to think it was all when it comes out of the books, and lie down and tell you about it—it gives me a queerish memory."

The girl nodded sullenly.

"The eldest?"

"Ah! I thought so. She seems rather put out to-day."

"Always," snapped the girl.

And as she evinced no disposition to prolong the conversation, and he was suddenly struck with the idea that the woman might see and recognize her, he went hurriedly away into the street.

He was detected and miserable; but the more he thought of it the surer he was that he had acted well in coming away without his girl. He had been so unprepared for it; he realized only that he had been deluding himself with vain hopes of finding a girl who would have so far to move no longer existed, and could be nothing to him henceforth but a regretful memory.

The whole scene seemed so crushingly unreal that with a forlorn idea of assuring his girl of his certainty he remarked to the waitress, as he was paying her for his tea: "Miss Walton seems—that is Miss Walton, isn't it?"

The girl nodded sullenly.

HOUSEHOLD.

PRETTY NIGHTGOWNS.

A woman who has a sewing machine can make her own underwear with comparative little work and all the expense that she can buy it made ready-made.

Nightgowns, especially, are satisfactory when made from a pattern proportioned to the figure. Cambric, muslin, lace, lawn, and batiste, and fine cotton are all used for this purpose.

New shapes hang full from the shoulders, the front trimmed in V shape, and the neck finished in square tabs of French insertion and a wide frieze embroidery.

Dotted Swiss with a loop or guipure edge is used for trimming many gowns. This is a good way to trim, as it requires an expensive trimming at small expense.

Another pretty style of gown is made of muslin with a neck outlined, back and front, having insertions of fine dainty lace or embroidery dotted about the outline and dressing the neck.

The sleeves are of three-quarters length, finished with a deep ruff that falls to the wrist.

Another pretty style of muslin has a cap outlining the neck and falling over the shoulders. This cap is cut square at the back, and Vandyke points over the shoulder and front. Rows of insertion are set lengthwise into the front, and a wide frieze of embroidery is applied to the sides. Strips of insertion follow the front to the waist line, adding greatly to the beauty of the gown.

A more elaborate gown is made, with the front made in a loquifit style to drop well below the waist line. At either side of the full front the gown is shaped with rows of French insertion separating bands of linen with dainty embroidery.

The neck is outlined with a sailor collar made of linen lawn, with fine tucks running diagonally and alternating with

A GATHERED VELVET BONNET.

How to Make It.

Flowers and feathers profusely trim the new spring bonnets, but with this liberality there is great taste and discrimination in the arrangement of them.

Velvet will vie with ribbon in Persian and mother-of-pearl designs for popularity, but the richness of the first-named fabric deserves its retention as long as possible as an important factor in up-to-date millinery.

The bonnet I have selected for our lesson today is a most comfortable one, and may be easily made.

In Fig. 1 an outline of the shape is given, and this is covered with dark green velvet. Half a yard will be required, and this will be enough for the bonnet shown in the next diagram.

This has to be evenly run in a series of lines indicated by the dots, and afterwards drawn up, the ends of each gathering being firmly bound by a stitch or two.

This, of course, cannot be done until you have fitted the gathered crown piece on to the shape, and regulated the fullness to it.

Then close attach the velvet to the bonnet.

FAMILIAR HYMNS.

"JUST AS I AM."

Charlotte Elliott.

Charlotte Elliott was the daughter of a Yorkshire squirl, Charles Elliott, and was born in 1789. Her mother's side was the granddaughter of Hemingway in February Ladies' Home Journal. He presents this almost idolized girl sovereign in a graceful pen picture, tells of her winsome ways, her delectable, her toys, her pets, and of her patriotic, treasured love of her subjects. Mr. Warren has sweetly pictured her in these words: "She is a bright-faced blonde little lassie who loves her country, and on that day on August 31, 1865. She is rather pretty and has a slender, graceful, young figure. I have seen her dressed in the costume of Zealand, and she looks as if for all the world like the old Queen George. Broughton's dear, delightful Dutch girl, except that her cheeks were not ruddy. She has a very delicate, clear complexion, her hair is pale brown, and long wavy waves, her eyes are blue, and there is a delicious twinkle in them which suggests that the young girl has a fair sense of humor. Her Christian names are Williamina Helena Paolina Maria Anna. I suppose that Miss Whitchurch asked by some stamping maiden in the dignities of queenship there is much satisfaction for a little girl who would answer 'No.' To be born into such a position is something to be got out of her position, but not so much as if the girl were the daughter of a rich Dutch burglar, or of a farmer in that wonderful country where the peasants are like walking jeweler's shops, and where the houses are built of gold and money. For this thing, the plumpness of the old Queen can very few and, as there is no boy of brothers and sisters in the family, the girl's life has so far been spent almost entirely among persons much older than herself."

After the separation of Rev. Dr. Malan, of Geneva, she was led to look to Jesus, and he saved. From that time a new life opened to her. The saintly spirit had spoken through the saintly teacher; her weary soul was free, and in the thirty-third year of her life she rejoiced in the words of the Saviour: "Saying unto him, 'Behold, I am not a man of earthly birth, but I am a man sent by God.'"

At once concentrated all her talents to God, and Edward Irving said he found in her an excellent co-worker, and the great Wilberforce says she often greatly encouraged him. Through recommended he became a member of the church.

She died at New York on Aug. 31, 1865.

After a few months of fighting and praying she says: "Oh, how many struggles, and apparently fruitless ones, have I had to get out of this life, but now I am free, my heavy load is gone. But this struggle is now over. His grace is sufficient for me. He knows, and He alone, what it is day after day and hour after hour, to fight against bodily feelings of almost overpowering strength, and to hold me back from giving up the ghost. I have been suffocated with depression and instability, but rise to every day and follow one motto, 'If any man will be my disciple let him take up his cross and follow me.'

"The first morning when she could say, 'I am no longer to my lot,' she took her pen and sketched the artless over-flowing of a simple heart in the beatiful hymn, 'My God, my Father, while I stray.'

She lived to be 82 years old. She died with these words on her lips, 'Mine eyes shall see him in his beauty, the King who brought me to salvation, to give "Thine is done!"'

The Rev. Henry Venn Elliott always considered this hymn of his sister to have outweighed in Christian value all his own efforts as a pastor.

The son-in-law of the poet Wordsworth once wrote Miss Elliott, thanking her for this hymn, and she replied: "I have had great comfort to my wife on her dying bed. 'When I first read it,' he states, 'I had no sooner finished than she said very earnestly, 'That is the very thing for me! At least, ten times that day she asked me to repeat it, over and over again, from that day until the day of her death. Two months later, the first thing she asked for was her hymn. 'Now my hymn,' she would say, and she would often repeat it after me, line for line, in the day and night. Her last words were, 'O, Lamb of God, come in.'

Dr. Macmillan did not attempt to unravel all entanglements. "Dear Charlotte," he said, "cut the cable; it will take too long to unloose it, cut it; the wind blows and the great ocean is before you, the Spirit of God and eternity."

She cut the cable "Waiting not"—and how many have since been able to follow her example while singing as she gave utterance to her freed spirit.

An Extraordinary Case.

Another change has been rung on the old ball which jangles out of tune only in the hands of the amateur. This time it comes from a young man who was away last summer on his bridal tour. The newly-wedded couple had stopped for three or four days at a quiet spring hotel with a large park and the regulations prohibiting from getting into this park after eight o'clock.

The young man didn't know about this rule and his bride, after a pleasant walk along the banks of the nearby river, strolled into the park and sat down. In a few minutes a watchman approached him and asked him if he was a tramp.

"I am very sorry to disturb you," he said politely, "but it is against the rules for couples to sit in the park after 7 o'clock."

"But this is my wife," exclaimed the astonished young man.

The watchman fell back as if he had been hit with something.

"Well," he said in great doubt, "I don't know just what to do in such a case. I never had one like it before, but there are about a dozen rules in this park, after eight o'clock."

"Well," he said in great doubt, "I don't know just what to do in such a case. I never had one like it before, but there are about a dozen rules in this park, after eight o'clock."

The young man didn't know about this rule and his bride, after a pleasant walk along the banks of the nearby river, strolled into the park and sat down. In a few minutes a watchman approached him and asked him if he was a tramp.

POULTRY HOUSE.

Fig. 1 of the accompanying illustrations gives the general plan of a poultry house and walls which are both comfortable and convenient and can be erected at a modest cost. H H represents halls, which are also used for sitting rooms. F is sitting room with large windows fronting the south. In this room should always be for the following: D B, dust-box; G, griddle, very convenient in cleaning out the droppings. R, roosting room. N, nest boxes, four of which are turned to front in the hall, leaving the remaining when used for sitting hens. This separates the sitting hens from the layers, avoiding the very common disturbance of the former.

The dotted lines show the position of the sitting partitions. The lower part of these partitions should be three inches higher than the nest boxes. Nest boxes should be made open at top and upper half of front and of size to suit the layer hens kept.

Fig. 2 shows the position of the wire netting partition (W N P) over the nest boxes (N B). L represents a hinged lid which may extend about as many nest boxes as convenient. This lid, hanging in the hall, may be lifted and all the eggs collected.

gathered from the hails. One of the small yards may be dispensed with, as hens from both hails may be admitted to either yard.

The house may be built any size, but at least 8 to 10 square feet should be allotted to each fowl. If the plan is not thoroughly understood, any question will be gladly answered.

A HANDY MOBILE SHED.

A handy, movable shed for brood sows, or calves, or any desired purpose, can be made as follows: For the roof take 4x4 pine scantlings 12 feet long; distribute these for rafters, nail to nail to each end a 2x4 pine scantling 8 feet long; place upon these scantlings lath and sheathing, and cover with shingles or other material.

In the ordinary way. For the ends: The lower end will require 2 scantlings 8 feet long and 2 uprights of same scantlings 2 feet long. Hinge this on lower inside edge of lower end of roof so it will turn inward. The upper end arrange the same way, only use 8 scantlings 8 feet long and 2 uprights of same scantlings 2 feet long. The sides fit in with similar framing and so hinge that each side will turn inward over the ends, and board upright around. The reason for this blinging is for convenience in knocking it down, moving it, and putting it up again. In tearing it down comes the tip it over on roof, wrong side up, on a flat, fold down ends and sides, then move where you want it, put up again and fasten at corners with a spike or two, leaving the heads out so as to drive it out easily, and it is complete. Often it is used for drying meat at night, tipped on the end of a stick, and left there. Such a convenience will many times pay for itself. It can be used sometimes for farm machinery or for storing potatoes or other articles ready to pile in market. The accompanying illustration will give an idea of its construction.—D. Livingston, Ohio.

A like clover has generally a more spiny stalk than the common red variety. It is a favorite hay for sheep and young stock, which will sometimes reject the coarse stems of clover. It has grown too rank and has fallen to the ground. The Alike clover is little likely to do this, as the plants grow so closely together that the leaves make nearly, or quite, as much feed, and generally of better quality.

The subvert of currants and currant culture is treated quite thoroughly in Bullock's "Soils and Manures," N. Y. State Experiment Station. It will be of great interest to all persons in the state who desire to make application for it, to the Station, Geneva, N. Y.

The leading old varieties and many new kinds are described and compared. Their growth, fruitfulness, and quality are noticed, as well as the black, white and red kinds of European origin. A discussion is given of approved methods of fertilization, cultivation, propagation and pruning, and methods of treating the insects which infest them and give害。 The bulletin will be especially valuable at this time since currants are now being raised in a commercial way more extensively than ever before in the history of this country.

A GOOD FARM GATE.

I send description of a farm gate cheaply and easily made, strong and not apt to sag. I have made several for myself and am well pleased with them. The hinge pins are 6 feet long, 3 x 4 inches round at the ends and bent back to prevent splitting. A round rod 84 inches in diameter and about 5 inches long is inserted in each end about 3 inches; the lower rod or pivot should have a flange welded on 1 inch from the end. At the foot of the post also a block of wood (or stone) so that its upper surface will be level with the ground. In its upper surface mortise a hole about 3 inches square and 1 1/2 inches deep, and bottom of the hole lay pieces of an old bunging iron 2 inches long; on it place a blank 7x1 inch nut. This will be a step for the gate to be pivoted on. Set the gate in the step; take a piece of plank about 18 inches long; bore a hole through the middle of the end; put the plank on the top, and pivot and spike it securely to top of gate post. The gate swings in either direction, and does not pull on the post so hard as it would on hinges.—Subscriber.

A GOOD FARM GATE.

Live Stock Notes.

Fowls should never be confined in such close quarters that they cannot take good exercise.

The Farm Journal of Kentucky finds in its issue of January a report of the sale of gray mares for $20 and a trio of Minature chickens for $80.

The barns of most farms look best, still there is a probability that where kept in stables reasonably warm that there is actually less danger from sickness, the animals generally keeping in better health when not blanketed at all. With those that are driven, however, a certain amount of care is necessary to prevent driving horses that are unquestionably benefited by clipping, when, of course, blanketing becomes imperative, but there are comparatively few animals on any stock farm that it would be advisable to clip.

Compared with oats, there is more protein in oats and less of the carbo-hydrates than in corn. Oats contain about 8.25 per cent. of protein and corn about 7.90, while corn contains about 67 per cent. of carbohydrates, oats 45 per cent. Thus, for fattening purposes, oats are superior to oats, but for animals that produce meat or growing, oats should be fed. Corn is usually cheaper than oats, which brings it into more general use, but it is more economical to feed oats to work horses, grooms, etc., cows giving milk and laying than to oats.

The cheapness of potatoes is leading many poultry men to use them extensively as feed for fowls. A few can perhaps be used with profit, but potatoes, however cheap, should never constitute the chief ration. The cooked potato is soft and easily converted of starch, it is, therefore, a poor substitute for oats. We have fed potatoes using only those left from the table; but even these lessened the egg product until we gave over feeding potatoes to the hens and fed them to grain when these were required whole grain to give the digestive organs time to do, and however dear what may be, it is, all things considered, the cheapest food for fowls that are producing eggs.

Farm Notes.

The San Miguel ranch of California is credited with being the largest lima bean ranch of the world, and culminated with raising 1,000 tons of lima beans last year, requiring 100 cars to ship them, aside from the twenty tons retained for seed. Other branches of agriculture are pursued on the ranch.

The Rev. J. H. Brighten, in the Oslo State Journal, recommends the orange orange as the best tree for planting for timber. Its good points he enumerates as follows: (1) It is easy to transplant and quickly takes root. (2) It is a fast grower, and reaches good size, (3) It is a straight, handsome tree, looking like the orange tree. (4) It is the strongest tree in the whole abomination. No tree will stand a cyclone like this. (5) It needs no care, and is a good protection. (6) It has no enemies like other trees. No bug, worm, beetle or beast will touch it and may be planted in the most public thoroughfare with safety. (7) It is the best timber, and when cut down, it is not even known by any one living enough to rot it. The wood is hard as ebony, but will live easily; is of a golden color, and polishes equal to mahogany. There is something about the hardness of the orange orange, which is a very low temperature prairie. It is a good hedge plant to some extent in Western U. S. In latitude 43, but the snow there protects the soil from deep freezing over its roots, which is probably the part of tree most sensitive to severe cold.

A QUICKLY MADE STABLE PEN.

It frequently happens that one desires to make use, for an emergency, of a stall or pen in the stable which is not at hand, and for which there may not be convenient room as a permanent structure. Our illustration shows how a pen may be made in a moment's time, in a corner of lower end of roof so it will turn inward. The upper end arrange the same way, only use 8 scantlings 8 feet long and 2 uprights of same scantlings 2 feet long. The sides fit in with similar framing and so hinge that each side will turn inward over the ends, and board upright around. The reason for this blinging is for convenience in knocking it down, moving it, and putting it up again. ## REMODELING A BARN.

One With a Basement is Most Comfortable for Stock.

There is some controversy concerning the advisability of a barn being built on a basement, and one built on level ground. Having used both, I candidly believe that farmers who contemplate building a new barn should consider the following:

Mr. Rogers, of the Bank of Montreal, will leave for Peterborough in about two weeks.

The Deseronto Carworks have received an order for four electric cars for the new Corn wall street railway.

LOST—A small silver cross; will the finder kindly leave it at The Tribune Office.

J. J. Vickes, formerly proprietor of the Vickes' Express Company, and at one time a member of the city council of Toronto, died on Wednesday. He was father of Mrs. McMurchie, wife of Prof. J. P. McMurchie, of Ann Arbor University, Mich.

Mr. Bryson, whose wife died so suddenly yesterday, had only returned a few days ago from the shanties in the North where he had been working. He drove past his house yesterday about three o'clock and his wife held up the baby to him at the window as he passed by. An hour after she was a corpse. She had only entered Mr. Eggar's drug store when she fell. Some men raised her up and she sighed twice. Dr. Vandervoort was immediately summoned, and in five minutes was on the spot, but he found life extinct.

Distressing Accident.
Mr. Henry Briscoe, 81, St. George street, while paying a visit to his sister, Mrs. H. M. Derouet, in Napanee last week, slipped on an icy boardwalk and falling broke the bones of both wrists. She was alone at the time but succeeded in making her way unaided to her sister's residence, where the fractures were reduced. She was brought home to Deseronto the same evening. On the following evening Mr. Briscoe had the misfortune to fall and seriously sprain his foot, and as a result of the accident has been confined to the house all week.

BANK CHANGES.

F. J. Rogers, Manager of the Bank of Montreal in this place, has been appointed manager of the branch at Peterborough, as successor to F. E. Hart, who has, on account of ill-health, been transferred to the head office at Montreal. F. W. Taylor, accountant of the Peterborough branch, who has for some time been acting as manager during the absence of Mr. Hart, succeeds Mr. Hart as manager of the Deseronto branch. Mr. Finnemore, of the Chicago branch, will become accountant at Peterborough.

The removal of Mr. Rogers to Peterborough will cause great regret to the business men of Deseronto and the public generally, all of whom have found in him a man of high character. He had been only a short time manager of the branch of the Bank of Montreal at Almostre when he was transferred to Deseronto to take the charge of the new branch then being opened. The opening of a new branch always creates a heavy responsibility, but Mr. Rogers proved entirely equal to the situation, and in a short time had established most pleasant relations with the business public. Mr. Rogers not only attended to the business of his branch, but he also took a very heavy interest in all matters of public import which affected the welfare of the town, and in this respect was ever ready with helpful suggestions and advice. His services were highly appreciated by promotion to the management of such an important branch as Peterborough is, therefore, no matter of surprise, though it means a loss to Deseronto. Mr. Rogers was very fond of many amusements, including cycling, etc. Both Mr. and Mrs. Rogers will be missed in social circles. Mrs. Rogers was a member of the ladies' literary society started in the town two years ago. All will unite in wishing them and their family very much happiness.

Preserving Meats.

From Germany comes a novel method of preserving food meat. The inventor's chief idea is that in the preserving process shall take place immediately after the killing of the cattle, and that in consequence a more digestible and nourishing quality of meat is obtained. In order to carry out these results a cap or mask, hermetically sealed, is placed over the animal, which is then quickly killed by the introduction of low pressure carbonic acid.

As soon as the animal is dead the heart is stopped, and the blood is drawn off by means of a tube. The preservative fluid is then injected and remains in the body. This fluid prepared by the addition of tallow, cream of tartar, carbonate of magnesia, and biphosphate of soda.

TAKEN IN TIME.

Hood's Sparapills have relieved great suffering to thousands of aches which, if allowed to progress, would have undermined the whole system and given disease a strong foothold to cause much suffering and even threaten death. Hood's Sparapills have been taken by thousands of cases which were thought to be incurable, and after a fair trial has effected wonderful cures, bringing health, strength and joy to thousands.

Another important point about Hood's Sparapills is that its powers are permanent, because they start from the solid foundation of purified, vitalized and enriched blood. But it is not what we say but what Hood's Sparapills does that tells the story.

The change of management at Haworth's Mills at Carlton Place has thrown many men out of employment; many have left for the United States.

FAILURE OF PHYSICAL AND MENTAL FORCE—TO ADD TO LENGTH OF LIFE—THE DODD'S

With a pathetic sigh how often it has been said:

"Well, then, I suppose I must let go my hold on life."

To the sad mother of unrescued children this is tragic.

But whence come sure and timely help? It deems to be preventive, not curative.

The timely answer is: By scientific and energetic kidney treatment—by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Bundes wrote to thank us and tell of their cure, but none to say that Dodd's Kidney Pills have ever failed.

BRONCHITIS CAN BE CURED.

By aiding miction with increased nutrition. The special function which Nature has given to cod liver oil and phosphatidic diuretics in pulmonary diseases is to build up and strengthen, by providing a valuable nutritive, combined with the purest cod liver oil. This valuable combination is enhanced by the addition of the hypophysis cerebellaris, the highest residue in debility and wasting diseases. The oil is rendered pliable, acceptable to the stomach, and of easy digestion. These merits place Matina with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophysis in the very first rank as aids to health. They are also well calculated to largely augment the nutritive matter available for renewing strength, muscle and tissue. None thus suffering from bronchitis or cough should neglect this remedy—a food medicine and reconstructive of the greatest value.

TAKEN IN TIME.

Hood's Sparapills have relieved great suffering to thousands of aches which, if allowed to progress, would have undermined the whole system and given disease a strong foothold to cause much suffering and even threaten death. Hood's Sparapills have been taken by thousands of cases which were thought to be incurable, and after a fair trial has effected wonderful cures, bringing health, strength and joy to thousands.

Another important point about Hood's Sparapills is that its powers are permanent, because they start from the solid foundation of purified, vitalized and enriched blood. But it is not what we say but what Hood's Sparapills does that tells the story.

The change of management at Haworth's Mills at Carlton Place has thrown many men out of employment; many have left for the United States.

To the sad mother of unrescued children this is tragic.

But whence come sure and timely help? It deems to be preventive, not curative.

The timely answer is: By scientific and energetic kidney treatment—by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

BRONCHITIS CAN BE CURED.

By aiding miction with increased nutrition. The special function which Nature has given to cod liver oil and phosphatidic diuretics in pulmonary diseases is to build up and strengthen, by providing a valuable nutritive, combined with the purest cod liver oil. This valuable combination is enhanced by the addition of the hypophysis cerebellaris, the highest residue in debility and wasting diseases. The oil is rendered pliable, acceptable to the stomach, and of easy digestion. These merits place Matina with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophysis in the very first rank as aids to health. They are also well calculated to largely augment the nutritive matter available for renewing strength, muscle and tissue. None thus suffering from bronchitis or cough should neglect this remedy—a food medicine and reconstructive of the greatest value.

LORD KILLEEN'S REVENGE.

Constantia was alone in her need (as she told herself bitterly) they had deserted her, and left her to face "the ugliest man you could see anywhere" for a "poor" unfriend! She stood motionless for a full minute, unable to lift her eyes from the carpet; and then, having discovered that the unattractive earth was not going to open and swallow her up quickly, she drew her brows down, blushed, face shamed and crimson to Mr. Strong.

He himself was decidedly pink as he stepped through the window and came straight toward her.

"Never mind," said he, earnestly. He took one of her hands and pressed it kindly. The distress on her pretty face made him so miserable that he hardly knew what to do. "What on earth does Constantia say?" he exclaimed. "Think no more of it. I cannot bear to see that look in your eyes. He had become quite calm now, and, remembering, sought to release her hand; but her fingers tightened upon his, and held him closely.

"Oh, I am sorry!" she stammered, tears filling her eyes. "And, besides, it wasn't true. Only George is so treacherous, and he was saying—". She broke off abruptly, and then added—
"I mean—that is—there really wasn't a word of truth in it. I have known any amount of people over so much uglier. Oh, no, that is not it!" cried she, horrified at her last mistake, which indeed crowded the other. "I mean I have known many not so good-looking as—"

Mr. Strong broke into a loud and hearty laugh. It was a laugh evidently from his heart, and irrepressible, and it had the effect of at once dispersing the cobwebs of awkwardness that hung in the mental atmosphere.
"Let us adhere to the truth at all costs," entreated he, still laughing. "If Nature had given me her blandishments, who shall dare to blame her? Not I, for one. We can't all be like you."

He bowed over the little hand he still held, and kissed it lightly—so lightly that it would have been impossible for her to understand the depth of the happiness he felt as his lips touched her. He was now smiling at her with the genial eyes in the world.

"But still—you must listen to me—I say you are not ugly," persisted Constantia. "And I don't suppose you will ever like me again, but—"

"Don't say that," interrupted he, still smiling. "There is no one who has taken a tinge of sadness."

"It is very good of you, then," said Constantia, dejectedly. "And I only hope that by and by, when you leave this, you won't think it over and change your mind about me. But if you do—please remember how dreadfully sorry I will be."

"Tut! Nonsense!" said he, gayly. At this juncture the door was partially opened, and Norah had appeared. Finding matters on quite an agreeable footing, she took her leave and entered boldly. Behind her was George. They were both evidently listening outside in the hall to see if further resistance would be required in case Mr. Strong should take the affair bad-humor.

"I thought you might like some strawberries—for Mrs. Dundas," he said. "My mother tells me they are early, and I have some."

"Brought them!" exclaimed George, surveying the dimensions of the basket.

"I'll bring the gate, and brought them down the avenue," said Norah, in a breath. There was another pair of eyes, Cleopatra's, which descended upon them, to judge of the anxious faces that first presented themselves. However, they now grew quite chipper again, and Mr. Strong, with beaming faces and extended hand,

He met them half way. He had grandly situated the door was partially open, and Norah had appeared.

She went up to him. Her face was charming always, but it was really lovely, with the sparkle of excitement in her eyes, and the glow of healthy lips. "How did you think of it all?" she said. "You are the kindest man on earth I know. How you must miss poor old Dona!"

If she had arranged the speech, it could not have been better. "I studied Dona; I met her. Good heavens! how blind, how ungrateful we are full of another. He had felt great joy when he present was accepted, when he knew he had been received into the family of man on earth, in his desire to please her; but now—was not thinking of Mrs. Dundas?" he said stiffly.

"No, of course," exclaimed George, with an indignant glance. Constantia was silent, holding nothing unkind. "You thought of Connie, wasn't it?" She had thrust her arm through his, and was smiling. "I'm afraid I'll be back about four. Will that do, Miss MacGillieuddy?"

"Don't be later," said she, with an anxiety that sent his blood rushing rapidly through his veins. He looked round at her.

"Is the pretty the table is?" he said at last. Indeed, the flowers were so exquisitely arranged that they struck one's eye.

"The whole effect is so charming that you must forgive my remarking it." They forgave him with a host of smiling words, and he was delighted with his criticism. The knowledge that his own house was a very magnificent one, and that nothing was more monarch than his purchases, luxuries were not unknown to him, only added to the worth of his opinion.

"I wish you could see them. You have been to Inchicron?" he said, looking at Constantia.

"Inchicron's time," replied she, flushing warmly. The Demondons were a good old Irish family who had come to this wild waste estate in the year of our Lord 1700.

was not late, as was her wont, there being no people before whom to make a success of it. She came therefore with a smile, and was even higher spirits than usual. Mr. Dundas, she said, could not afford her her services, or anything, at all events, connected with the soul. She kissed Constantia, and begged George to take her to see the new puppies, whose fame, she said, had spread far and wide. George certainly was captivated by her, and Constantia was pleased, though the hearing term "mouse." She was an infant terrible in many ways, and had run over her mother's head again that day. She had been to the doctor, and said that she would be so inconsiderate as to wait.

"That's always the way," said Constantia; "nothing fulfills itself save the unexpected."

"The flowers are so nice," exclaimed George, with an indignant glance. Constantia was silent, holding nothing unkind.

Now who would have thought she would be so inconsiderate as to wait?

THE "POLE NORD."

ANOTHER ATTEMPT TO FIND THE NORTH POLE.

How Will be Made for the First Time in the Arctic by Dr. Andre's A.M.A. Ship.

We present-day official documents of the Arctic balloon in Dr. S. A. Andree the famous Swedish Arctic explorer, to try and shift to the north.

Pole from the sky, the sky selected for the first time.

Andree's expedition.

In a previous issue we have seen how Dr. Andre's Arctic expedition has been more successful than the others.

Andree and his two companions

had hit upon a practicable plan.

In the absence of accurate information as to the Nansen expedition in the Fram, g and so on, he believed that old

Norwegian had been more successful than the others.

Andree and his two companions

had hit upon a practicable plan.

Andree's expedition.

The balloon is now building at Vanguard, a suburb of Paris, and will be completed in time for the start of the expedition, which has been fixed by Andree for the last week of May or the early part of June.

The balloon, which has been christened "Pole Nord," will be made of silk, especially designed for the best journeys of Lyons.

The diameter of the Pole Nord will be 201.3 metres, its capacity 4,530 metres.

The bag will be made of three thicknesses of silk bound together by an adhesive varnish specially prepared for the purpose.

It is calculated that the balloon will be gas-proof, and that the gas with which it will be charged at the point of ascension will not leak, and will retain its buoyancy until Andree and his two companions climb the pole, or, if unable, land on the most northerly part of the American Continent.

A curious feature of the balloon is the big guide-rope of coconut fiber, weighing

1,000 kilogrammes, a weight sufficient to maintain the balloon at a height of about 600 feet, at which elevation the explorers can stand and look over which they

grapher, to picture them.

The expedition will start from Gothenburg on a specially chartered steamer, the Virgo, and will reach Northwestern Spitzberg in two weeks.

There the explorers will descend to Copenhagen, a picture of which is presented on page 1.

In this house the balloon will be charged with gas carefully made by experts.

RESCUED FROM INSANITY.

GENTLEMEN.—To say all I sought in favor of B. B. B. would be impossible. It has been a great burden to me to have him. I am a different man to what I was ten years ago when it was expected I would be in the asylum, but now I am in perfect robust health and it was the B. B. B. that did not suffer for five or six years that I was in constant anxiety and trouble as to what I was to do with my mind.

I visited various doctors, both in the country and in the city, and took medicines too numerous to mention, but everything failed to have the desired effect. When I used to go to the doctor it was because it was necessary to pay him, and when I did not have the money, I had to go to the chemist, who would give me a prescription, requiring only two bottles to cure me. To make it more certain that the B. B. B. is the real cure for constipation, I may say that some two years afterwards I left the symptoms returning and took one bottle of the medicine every day for two years, and still they returned. This time to the present day (over eight years) I have never had any return of the disease.

I never knew any medicine to work so well. It does not seem to be a mere reliever but for health and certain cure as I can testify to having suffered for years with pain and advice failed to give me any good, but three dollars' worth of B. B. B. made a perfect cure that gives me years of health and comfort.

Yours truly,

C. L. KILMER, Toronto.

FACTS ABOUT BEES.

BUSY INSECTS FURNISH A TOPIC FOR A GOVERNMENT REPORT.

The Bee-keeping Industry is Growing Rapidly in This Country, and Already Produces $15,000,000 Annually—Fine Strains of Bees Imported from Foreign Countries Are Doing Wonderful Work.

A bee book will be published soon by the Department of Agriculture. It is likely to be less interesting than the history of the bee, which seems to have made an impression three years ago that many thousands of extra copies were ordered and distributed by congress. The purpose of the new work is to encourage a business which is becoming steadily more profitable in this country, the honey production of the United States amounting at present to about 100,000,000 pounds annually, worth $10,000,000 worth of wax. It is a fact that practically all the modern inventions which relate to keeping bees are of Yankee origin, from the plan of the up-to-date hive to the centrifugal honey extractor.

HEAD AND TOE USE OF HONEY BEE.

These bees are great honey gatherers, and Dr. Benten believes that they would be able to get nectar from many kinds of flowers whose sweet are not of the usual kind, such as red clover, which for its fertilization depends entirely on the bumble bee which visit it.

The flower has described longer tongue than any other bee, as it is believed that the flower is able to attract the flower of the clover, instead of merely causing the plant to produce seed more abundantly. Red clover is grown largely in Australia and New Zealand, where the flowers and recently were found to be used for honey, cause there were no bumble bees to fertilize the blossoms.

But the idea of using the flower for honey is the common idea of most people.

This fertilizing dust of flowers is often found home by the workers and pollen laid upon the head, especially on the hind legs. From the hind and forelegs there are so many bumble bees in New Zealand and Australia that they are a nuisance. Bumble bees are industrious gatherers, but there are never more than one in one acre to make a store that is worth taking.

The natives of India have a superstitious dread of the giant bees, though it is not true that they are particularly fierce.

They are not nearly as large as the common bees, but they are more numerous and more aggressive than the common ones.

"She has become a Blue Ribbon since her doctor forbade him to eat her golf in want of a fresh sensation. Evans followed suit, as in duty bound, and is now a first-class apostle of the temperance creed."

"But what has all this to do with his voice?" asked Mrs. Blake, who wanted to hear the very last bit of scandal.

"The rest of it was a tale that was told."

"I'll tell you," said Barry; "only Mrs. Dundas and Strong haven't read Volume I. With regard to his voice, you know he makes his a's, o's, and generally plays 'Old Harry' with his vowels. Well, the other day he went up to Cairns, and when his visit was at an end, found himself in the hall with Miss MacGillivray. She pitied him upon the hall, which is indeed, a special feature at Cairns."

"It is every feature rolled into one. It is the whole house," said Mrs. Blake.

"It's a nice bit of architecture, and beyond dispute old," put in Varley.

"It had been young it would have been the same to Evans, whose antecedents, I should say, preclude the possibility of knowledge of ancestral halls; but he knew it was poor habitation, so he stopped short in the middle of it, changed his house, however, and said, in a low, rapturous tone: 'What a hole! He meant hall, poor man, but his extraordinary accent was the undoing of him."

Constantia burst out laughing. How did Mrs. Harrington take it?" asked she.

"Hailly. She will not now be persuaded that he did not mean it. She thinks herself clever, but in reality her brains are of a very mediocre quality. She abuses him right and left, and has opened negotiations with the master of a German school, with a view to sending our eldest son abroad, to avoid the whispering influences of home teaching."

"Poor Bobby Harrington!" said George. "I wonder how he will like the black bread and the sauerkraut, the unkempt wigs, and the dirt generally? I guess he'll have to whistle for his bath there."

"Nonsense!" said Constantia. "I dare say he will find himself much happier than at home."

"Which won't be saying much for him," laughed Mrs. Blake.

"So that is the end of the faithful friendship between the Evanses and the Harringtons."

"The extreme end. Mrs. Harrington goes about town everywhere, telling all of her acquaintances how insolent Mr. Evans has been to her, his best friend (she dwelt strongly upon favors past), and how he belittled the best bit of her house's 'hole.'

"Mr. Evans is to be pitied," said Constantia. "And after all he has sacrificed, too, for her! Sometimes even his movements are pitiful."

"A man like that is not to be pitied!" exclaimed Mrs. Dundas, with a curl of her short upper lip. "Pout! What a poor creature! You agree with me, I suppose?"

"Varley, who, however, made no reply. Self-respect! When a man is due to him in a measure," said Mrs. Blake. "He has gone so far with the Blue Ribbon measure that he cannot draw back, and to face the world forever with a blue rag pinned upon his breast requires courage."

"It would disconcert him," said Barry, "but Sir Wifrid Lawson suggested Strong, laughing.

"What you have said, yet after all, with whom we first meet, he is worthy of pity!" cried Donna Dundas.

She was looking lovely, radiant. She was pointing out the longest strawberries from the side of her plate, and was evidently enjoying them. She had said no to the tea, and yes to the chocolate. She was enjoying that, too, quite thoroughly, though drinking it out of a tumbler.

When the Blue Ribbon craze overtook Miss MacGillivray, she had fallen foul of winged angels, and had consigned them to the lowest depths. In other words, the underground cellar. When she was brought up again, word out of her sight, with the miserable reminders as they were of demoralizing pagan orgies! She would have been a picture in glowing glass, but for the frugal spirit with which Galling courage to annihilate what had cost no money, she squared matters with her hostess by presenting them to him. A kind of indecision, considering the key of it was always in his pocket, until they would never see the light of day or the progress to a persistence in his folly.

"Well, you see it was business brought him to Lord Varley, generously or shall we say, as a rock?"

He looked at Donna. "I should have presented myself earlier, no doubt, but for Mr. Evans' unexpected injunctions; but I assure you, if I got rid of him, so to speak, in time."

"In time for what?" asked Norm sharply.

"To see you," replied Varley, laughing. "I just told you how I ran all the way."

"You don't seem overfrightened," remarked Mrs. Dundas dryly. "Your arm is still, with your beloved has not taken much out of you. You look pretty cool, considering your age."

"In you, doubt me not, you look like a young person in a peacock's nest. There was an undercurrent of serious meaning in his voice, but it betrayed itself to Barry."

Mrs. Dundas smiled and dropped her eyes. Helped herself to another large sandwich, and leisurely picked out a second with a view to crushing it into the thick sweat cream upon her plate.

"I never said," she said, slowly, "I always know!"

At this instant the door was thrown open, and Minnie, who was a person of importance, burst into the room.

Mr. Featherston, Mr. O'Grady, she entered at the top of a fresh jubilant voice. She had come to him, dressed with this addition to Miss Connie's party. "The more the merrier," was a motto of hers, when "the more" meant men.

Constantia started visibly and blushed crimson. She had not had the courage to invite Featherston, and might have done so, but for the world over. She was rather pale, now in fact, but in a fresh sensation. Evans followed suit, as in duty bound, and is now a first-class apostle of the temperance creed."

"What has all this to do with his voice?" asked Mrs. Blake, who wanted to hear the very last bit of scandal.

Electric Locomotives Will Enable Them to Wear Gold-Laced Uniforms or Even Diamonds.

The British Westinghouse electric locomotive, just completed, is the first one of the kind in the world, and, besides, the fact that it is expected to make seventy-five miles an hour, it has other claims to notice.

Not the least of these is the revolution that it will doubtless create in the lives of locomotive engineers, and they belong to one of the most important classes of citizens in this country.

Sleekly behind the glass windows that frame them in, with no smoke, soot, grime or gases, it is the reason why the engineer of the future will be more exalted than the president of the road, unless a uniform be deemed desirable.

In this case it may be gold laced and as handsome as that of a captain on an ocean liner.

The new locomotive is thirty-eight feet long by nine feet wide. It is mounted on eight wheels, forty-two inches in diameter. The wheels are of wrought iron, mounted with heavy steel tires. The machine without the motor weighs thirty tons. The electric equipment will add thirty tons.

A compartment, six feet square, is all that is required to operate the mechanism, and the remaining space may be utilized in any way that is desired.

The electric equipment consists of four 250 horse power motors, geared so as to regulate the speed of the train, and to move the load in these uses trolley cars, but they are much larger. One man will run them. He will be called the driver. He will view the track from a window directly in front, and have a powerful general switch which will be operated just as on the steam engines. There will be an electric air-pump, and it is claimed that it will be possible to stop a train in perhaps half the space of time that is now required.

It is the pattern of the heel of the Granby Rubber or Overshoe. The next time you buy a pair of rubbers or overshoes ask for Granby's and look for this pattern in the heel. There is no need to take a Granby that is not the same shape as yours because they are made to fit every shape of shoe. A rubber that does not fit the boot will drag the foot. Granby Rubbers are thin, light, elastic and fit perfectly. They wear like iron.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

PRESENTATIONS AT GANANOQUE

Mrs Ada Hagerman, who has been visiting her cousin, Mr. Allen Roblin, has returned to her home in Belgrave.

A slight load of young people from this town spent Wednesday evening of last week at the residence of Mr. James McLaren, of Melrose, and all report a very enjoyable time.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sherman were visiting their daughter, Mrs. A. T. Tull, of Tuftsville, last week.

Mr. Lizzie Robins, who is on the sick list, is fast recovering under the careful attendance of Dr. Whitehead.

Mr. Thompson, who has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Clara Ross, has returned to her home in Belgrave.

Miss Clara Sabbath School is well attended under the management of J. Cole.

The firm of Hailes, Lieudeking & Co., Montreal, agents, Montreal, have signed with the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The resolution passed by the United States Ambassador Bayard for his Boston and Edinburgh speeches passed the house at Washington.

The attack of John of the Royal School of Infantry, late of the Royal Engineers, who refused to do fatigue duty were found guilty of mutiny by the court-martial.

Mr. John Morley, Friday, in the Imperial House of Commons, moved a want of confidence resolution in the Government in the Egyptian question. The resolution was lost on a division of 288 to 145.

Mr. Hatch, of Prince Edward Co., called on a few of his friends last week.

Miss Emma Reid, of Shandonville, is visiting at her uncle's, Mr. Robert Haight.

Messrs Fairman and Ross passed through the village one day last week on their way to Johnstown.

Only ten days more in which to settle that little bill at Barnetts.

CENTREVILLE WEST.

We are anxiously waiting for warm weather. The roads are still in a poor condition.

The grippe is very prevalent here and a great many are complaining with the disease.

Miss McMillan is slowly improving after a couple of weeks illness. As is also Wm. Martin's child.

Wm. McGill has disposed of all his hay, almost two hundred tons. We can easily get more if we want it. A large amount of it was taken in the northern towns, principally to Hungerford.

A few from here expect to attend the Liberal meeting at Harrowsmith on the 27th inst.

G. W. Dawson is steadily gaining in popular favor and is sure to win. The majority sees in him something above the ordinary members of parliament and he is one of the rising public men of Canada. When he starts on his campaign tour he will meet with a hearty reception.

Miss S. Dunn of Deseronto, is visiting friends here at present.

A number from here expect to leave for Uncle Sam's domain shortly.

Some of our young men are "holding down" their training place. The Hull fevers seem to have died away.

Sales of various rouses, puzzles are raging and weddings—well they seem to be a thing of the past.

A. C. Barnett is offering special reductions on boots and shoes, groceries, etc., during the ten days prior to his removal from town.

PARKS.

Last Thursday and Friday was the worst blizzard that we had this winter and left the roads in a very bad state. Our daily mail from Adolphustown did not reach New York until 1 o'clock in the evening.

This is a good deal of sickness in this place at present.

John Griffith has been confined to his bed for several days; he is under the care of Dr. Ward of Napanee. His sisters, Mrs. N. S. and Mrs. E. Danbar, have been lost to him since he came, the latter remaining a few days.

Ruben Garrison and Thomas Bunting have also been confined to their beds for some days. Dr. Northmore of Balsam has been attending them.

R. S. Udman and James Stratton have been confined to the house for several days.

Quite a number of the houses have been buying fodder for some time; they had the best very bad this last storm.

James Carruthers has bought Charles Wager's lot and now in late spring.

Mrs. M. Diamond, Herb, and Miss C. Wager were visiting friends at Mr. Delong's, Prince Edward County. They say they had a lovely time. Miss Diamond caught a very bad cold.

Some of the people in this part wants to know if it will ever come spring again; they say if they should live for a thousand years they never want to see such a winter as this again.

D. Griffith has finished drawing his saw logs to Napanee.

BRUTTON.

There was a very enjoyable entertainment on Thursday evening of last week in the caretaker's room. Mrs. Sims, who never seems happy unless it is in contributive other's happiness, kindly invited the members of the club to spend the evening with her and a very pleasant time it was.

Refreshments were served, amusements of various kinds were indulged in throughout the evening and at the usual hour of adjournment all were in high spirits with a determination to do better service in future.

The Mission is doing good work, the Sabbath School is prospering, has a good staff of teachers, a very zealous superintendent and nearly one hundred scholars on the books.

It is crowded at the evenings services and would like to have more room. If this state of thing continues, and all hope it will, the Mission people will have to get a larger building—but how! Ah! there's the rub.—Com.

RUPTURE.

Mr. B. Lindquist, of Toronto, manufacturer and proprietor of the celebrated Wilkins' tooth powder, has returned to Deseronto on Monday the 13th of April, for purposes of fitting those suffering from hernia or rupture. The excellence and simplicity of the Wilkins' Truss are well known but have not been endorsed by those wearing them or having them made from the Atlantic to the Pacific as also by every physician and surgeon in Toronto; without exception. You have no doubt noticed the tremendous success and the rapid recovery which the rupture may undergo when treated by the use of the Wilkins' Truss.

The Wilkins' Truss is similar to that of the human hand, not only reducing but fully retarding the rupture. It is no complex business and endorsed by those wearing them or having them made from the Atlantic to the Pacific as also by every physician and surgeon in Toronto; without exception. The Wilkins' Truss is perfect true fact that this is The True perfect cure for the toothache.

The fire at Colon destroyed 90 houses.

Robert Anderson, a well known capitalist of Montreal, is dead.

Alexander Reid, a deaf mute, was killed by a train at Belleville.

Last Saturday evening Mr. J. Frank Chapman, late Sept. of the Thousand Islands Railway here, was presented at the company's hall with a handsome mantle by the employees of that T. I. line and Rathbone's agency here in town, which was received by an address expressing great respectability and gratification at his promotion and according to the friendly feelings which had always existed between them.

Shortly afterwards a large number of the manufacturers, business and professional men, and citizens, assembled at Gamble's hotel and hotel and a short while ago took possession of a dining room in the hotel to enjoy a few hours with Mr. Chapman on the eve of his departure for Deseronto.

After all had been seated, Mr. W. D. Carroll, in a few well-chosen remarks, stated the object of the gathering and before taking his seat read another address in which flattering references were made to Mr. Chapman's integrity, courtesy and efficiency as an official, and assuring him that he carried to his new sphere the best wishes of all in Gananoque.

Mr. Geo. Taylor, South Lake's postmaster, gave a few appropriate remarks, when asked what Mr. Chapman's acceptance of the Thousand Islands Railway service, and paid him a high compliment for the able and honorable manner in which he has discharged the duties of his office during the past seven years.

To say the least it was a big surprise to Mr. Chapman, who responded in an able manner, thanking his many friends on behalf of his wife and for their kindness in their recent services.

Mr. Chapman, in his speech, said he would never forget his stay in Gananoque and its many pleasant associations, but would always cherish the fondest recollections of Gananoque and its hospitalities.

He briefly reviewed his career here in the interest of the company, and said that although he was going away, still if anyone wanted a favor and it was in his power to grant it, he would do so.

After his departure, Mr. Chapman said that in Dr. Douglass' absence he had been offered a half interest in the hotel, but he declined the offer.

Mr. Douglass' son, Mr. Douglass Jr., said he would never forget his stay in Gananoque and its many pleasant associations, but would always cherish the fondest recollections of Gananoque and its hospitalities.

DOMESTIC

SAVED MY HORSE.

Douglas & Co., Napanee, Ont.

Dear Sirs.—During the summer of 1890 I had a mare staked in such a manner that prevented me to shoot her. I got Mrs. Geo. Taylor's Egyptian Liniment and Syringe. After putting the mare in the stall she was enabled to get hold of the stall, which was nothing less than part of a bandage that had gone in her flank and was pulled out at night. To say the least it was a big surprise to me. Mr. Chapman's acceptance of the Egyptian Liniment directed my mare was at work in three weeks. The abdomen was inflamed and distended. After Douglas' Egyptian Liniment was applied to the mare's side it was evident that the mare had recovered. Inflammation and distension were removed. The mare was in full strength again. I declare that the Egyptian Liniment is the best I have ever used.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

Is a deplorable condition of body, to which the sufferer becomes a victim to a legion of diseases, resulting in debility, exhaustion or even death.

After suffering from this disease for a long time the sufferer becomes a victim to the impairment or exhaustion of nervous force.

Sleeplessness, too, comes to rob the sufferer of nature's sweetest solace and restorer, and a disordered digestive function causes the sufferer to feel the effects of the disease.

Malting with Coca Wine, more than any preparation, is the best remedy for this disease.

Malting with Coca Wine possesses tonic properties that are directed in a very special way to the nerve centers, giving them tone, vigor, and the staying power so much needed, and which is necessary for the recovery of the nervous system.

Thus we have the production of all the elements of adequate nutrition, which, in combination, is certain to give health, strength and vigor. Malting with Coca Wine is sold by all druggists.

THE "BIG" FOUR.

A Quartette of the ones that are Effect ive and successful.

"I was sick for months," says Dr. Chase, "and Newcomb Mills, N.Y., tried various alleged patent cures and several boxes of a certain pill which has been greatly advertised, did not get rid of me." Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills, since he has been able to work every day and feel like a man, cost $1.00 per bottle alone cured me at a cost of 25 cents.

"I have been subject to severe cold every fall and spring," says Miss Anna Potts, of Meyersburg, Pa. "For two years I have used your Cures and they have completely cured it. It is truly worth its weight in gold instead of the price you charge, only 25 cents."

I bought a box of your Cures for 25 cents. My doctor drug store here says Henry R. Nichols of 176 Rectory street, London, Ont., "I am thankful to say it cured me."

Chase's remedied at all dealers, E.M. man, Bates & Co., Montreal, Toronto.

The Napace Road.

The Napace road between Deseronto and Napace is during the summer months one of the worst in the province. It is a discredit to the authorities of Lennox and Richmond. It is travelled by great numbers both for business and pleasure, and yet very small sums of money are expended upon it and the little work which is done is performed in the most primitive manner. The small bridge over the Napanee river is a great hindrance to travel.

The Napace road between Deseronto and Napace is during the summer months one of the worst in the province. It is a discredit to the authorities of Lennox and Richmond. It is travelled by great numbers both for business and pleasure, and yet very small sums of money are expended upon it and the little work which is done is performed in the most primitive manner. The small bridge over the Napanee river is a great hindrance to travel.

DEATH FROM HEART FAILURE

THAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN AVOIDED BY THE USE OF DR. AGNEW'S CURE FOR THE HEART.

Promptness is the first essential in all cases of sickness, especially in heart disease. Minutes may mean everything.

The use of a life preserver may mean the saving of a life, where the use of a powerless little pump may simply leave death to take its course.

One great virtue of Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart is that it gives relief almost immediately, whether the case be of cerebral or systematic heart trouble. The proprietors of this medicine bear the strongest testimony to this fact. "I would not have been alive to-day had it not been for your medicine," is the cheering refrain of a large percentage of the letters received by the proprietor of this remedy.

TUBERCULOSIS.

A Germ Disease Which the State Should

SOCIAL CONDITIONS ON THE FARM

Wisdom from a Wise-Awake Farmer at an Institute Meeting.

It is now well established that tuberculosis is a germ disease, in that respect resembling smallpox, yellow fever and many other maladies. This germ lives in great numbers in animal bodies and is prevalent throughout the animal kingdom, like other disease. Cattle are especially susceptible, but many domestic and other animals are subject to it and may be the means of conveying it to the human subject. The germ manifests no power of voluntary motion and would therefore be classed as vegetable rather than animal. It vivifies in one of three strong classes—water, air or earth. After the substance in which it has grown has been dried to dust. Freezing cold does not kill it and it requires a temperature of about 105° to do that. It is liable to occur in every dairy food products, as meat and milk, yet is so minute as to escape ordinary means of detection, accounts in large measure for the wide distribution in the market.

But modern science has furnished the means of detecting the presence of these germs of consumption with such certainty that it now becomes the duty of the State to protect people against the liability to purchase and to eat articles which are affected with this disease, and more to take a similar course to that pursued in the recent stamping out of the dread cattle plague and rid the country of all tuberculous animals.

The fact is that it is liable to occur in every dairy food products, as meat and milk, yet is so minute as to escape ordinary means of detection, accounts in large measure for the wide distribution in the market.

The germ is a living, breathing, invisible organism, having no power to move, yet it can move, and it can move in any direction.

Let us break up these little bands that are bound together by dollars and cents and take in reason and common sense. I do not advocate the idea of taking the collar off the shoulders of farmers and treating them as our equals. But there are many diamonds in the rough who only need the polishing that even our society could give them to make them shine and become useful members. We who are members cannot expect to give society entertainment and in that way stand the test of a being social, but there are many ways we can win the good will of our fellowmen and put us on an equal footing. We need to have a club, with a name and flag. Take for example our own club. How few of us were acquainted and how little we know of each other. We no doubt all had our opinions of every other member of the club, and I wonder how many of these opinions have stood the test of a year's trial together in a social way. Consider for a moment the fact that there is too much society dispensed on the debt and credit system. Mr. So-and-So invites me to his social, therefore I must invite him to mine, when perhaps there is a meeting of the members' host and guest which cannot be overcome, even during the time of entertainment. Another very important point is that of treating all guests alike as far as possible to do so; of welcoming all with cordiality and endeavoring to see that they have pleasant time. This can be done either for social or professional better than the golden rule. "Whatever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

A Hoisting Singletree.

The illustration is of a hoisting singletree which has been recently patented in the United States and which has been successfully used on horse drivers and where hay is put into the barn by means of a large fork. In the figure on the right the singletree and accompanying apparatus are shown in position. The traces are passed through the keepers, and along the back of the singletree to hooks in the top of the traces. The traces being thus fastened close to the horse like breeching without having to shorten the traces. It is held up by a strap, the upper end of which is strapped into the ring at the back, which connects the straps that support the traces. By means of this arrangement the singletree is kept from dragging against the horses legs and the traces do not become Horses are Nervous.

The great superiority of the horse to all other dumb animals, according to Mr. H. C. Merwin, is the fineness of his nervous system. The most rapid and fastest horse says the same writer, have been found to possess some very "high strung" constitutions. Others have had as good legs and as good lungs but have lacked the necessary courage and determination, the "dor or do" spirit, which makes a horse keep on after his master. This is the quality which renders the horse the most terrible of creatures, the most easily worried and distressed. Upon this point Mr. Merwin makes some observations that are worth reading by all who have or expect to have horses.

Horse treatment though it aches of inflicting physical pain, keeps a nervous horse in a state of misery. On the other hand, it is perfectly true, as a besotted but intelligent stable keeper once observed to me, that "the horse is as good sometimes as a fool of a man."

In dealing with a horse, more than with most animals, one ought to exercise patience, care, and above all, the power of sympathy, so as to know if possible the real motive of his doing or refusing to do this or that, and acquire such knowledge and tact upon it when acquired as a large part of the ethics of horse keeping.

The Perfect Farm Horse.

The perfect farm horse has not been developed yet, but it is probable that there may not be entirely conformed to the ideal drawn. This summary of its accomplishments, however, is not beyond attainment. It must have the size and strength to draw a plow with ease; the style and action needed to make a trip to market and back in the least possible time; a cool disposition, but not to the detriment of nerve, a most necessary qualification of a good farm horse; and, lastly, it must be such a horse as can successfully meet competition in the sale ring.—N. Y. World.

The Feathering of Cockens.

One of the evidences of purity in the cockin fowl is that the shanks are heavily feathered, extending down to the end of the toes, and the middle toe is also well feathered. When young they are almost naked for awhile, as they feather slowly, but when fully matured they are heavily feathered, while enables them to stand the cold well. They are excellent layers if not made too fat, as they should therefore be fed with judgment, and sitters and mothers, the hens rank higher than those of any other breed.

How Light Affects Bees.

It is said that the sight of the bees is affected by both a dazzling and a dim light. The bees will fly on the snow dazzling sun, which is stated that if they are thrown a short distance from their hives in the dark, the effect is nearly the same. They will circulate about and fall without being able to find their home.

The Horse Sense of It.

The power and longevity of the horse are in exact ratio to the intelligent care and feeding he receives. He can draw on his fixed stock of vitality to supply the deficiency of food or to do overwork, but it shortens his life and reduces his value.—N. Y. World.

To Cure Croup Under.

For croup under child: Take a cup of vaseline and thoroughgill oil in equal parts of spirits of turpentine and spirit of camphor, or saturated camphor, as called by some; beat up thoroughly and rub on under, or apply to any wound.

A Bitten Worm-Out Land.

Worn-out land requires at least two or three years for restoration, and it will cost something to bring it back to fertility. The best way to do this is to let it lie fallow until it is no longer capable of producing a crop, the plant food cannot be replaced in a single season.

A Business Pointer.

Every package of farm produce that leaves the farm is an advertisement for the man who sends it out. Neat packages and well packed are sure to sell, and will sell the second time. Pay more attention to the commercial side of your business if you want to succeed.

FARMING AND GARDEN

SEED POTATOES.

Fertile Advice About Selecting and Curing for Seeds.

The Ohio Farmers' Almanac devotes considerable attention to the question of seed potatoes, and a large number of its readers indulged in a correspondence symposium on the subject. The question is, how shall we bring about the much needed improvement? The answer is that, though this cold half hearted way that too many of us fall into, would injure the best of society, leave your care and worries at home, put on your coat and get every one convivial. Many an honest heart is cheered and brightened immeasurably by a friendly smile and a kindly word. Congratulatory often, and you will recognize perhaps so much of our society. Let in a little sunshine and have a general spring thaw and see what results will follow. Another break is break up the soil, and then lay a thin black layer of society; there is far too much attention paid to money value to have genuine hospitality. How often do we see a poor ignoramus suddenly acquire control of a rich estate? Another break is to let the soil have a little sunshine and have a general spring thaw and see what results will follow. Another break is break up the soil, and then lay a thin black layer of society; there is far too much attention paid to money value to have genuine hospitality. ## THE FARM HORSE AT WORK.

How He Should be Gradually Brought Again Into Work in Spring.

After a season of comparative rest and idleness during the winter, the farm horses should be brought gradually into full work in the spring. To do this in a hard day's plowing at first, but rather let them do lighter work for the first few days. Their shoulders will need watching to see that they do not strain, as they do not gall. Loose collars are the most frequent cause of sore shoulders. Sponge the shoulders night and morning with a cloth dipped in warm bark water until they get hardened. Many farmers think it too much trouble to remove the collars at noon, but I think it would well repay the trouble in added comfort to the horse. If in taking of your hat when you come in at noon, tread and heated by your work.

Removing the collars at noon, while the horses are eating gives the shoulders a chance to move around, and the blood circulates, bathe it at least three times a day with cold water. If possible, let the animal rest until the place is healed, but by all means try to arrange by winding cloth around the collar so as to hold it upon that spot. Do not burn the horse too much, but let it take its own natural pace, and it will not need to rest so often, and will leave the field fresher than if hurried along.

In marking out ground for corn or potatoes, if one's horse is used it is not so easy to drive in a straight line as when two horses were used. If a single horse is used it will go straighter and better if allowed to run loose, as the horse is jerked and yoked at because nervous and excited, know what it is about, and can do no harm, as well as when he is unexercised. Give a horse a loose rein when he is at work. He cannot use his full strength when he is at work. If he uses a tight check rein, perhaps he is not strong enough for the work that there be no check reins at all for a horse will be reaching down to the ground when standing still, but it should certainly allow the horse to get his head down to when the weight of the rest of the body. Some horses naturally lay their heads high, even when at work, but most of them will not need to get their heads down to throw all their weight into the collar to move a heavy load.

Clean Horse Collars.

One reason why horses gall their shoulders while at work is the neglect of the attendant in keeping the portion of the collar clean and free from the skin from the dirt, and dandruff, which continually gather upon the leather. This is rolled into lumps by the friction of the collar against the shoulder in walking. At the beginning of the season's work the shoulder should be cleaned every morning and noon, before commencing work. For the first few days one or two cleanings during the half day will prevent galling. This can be done by rubbing the hand briskly along the surface of the collar, but a moment and can be done while the horse is resting. The shoulders should also be washed in warm water at night, rubbed dry, and then washed in water in which white oak bark has been boiled for fifteen minutes, the bark is tongheened and the galling prevented. Colts, particularly, should have their collars well fitted.—American Agriculturist.

Train Colts to Walk.

Many colts are now learning to walk. The rate of travel required of them is important. Confining the travel mainly to a walk is not the rule with all drivers. As soon as the young animal ceases to rear and plunge in the harness, the confinement should be relaxed, and it allowed to gait it may choose. The old horse by which the youngster is hitched, is allowed to advance by long rapid strides, thus forcing the colt out of a walk from the start. The colt is then caused to be led about, and forced to walk at a gait which the learner can equal. Gradually increase the rate, but only in keeping with the ability of the colt to walk. A colt that proves naturally slow at first will be given short trips of not more than five miles, and as steadily urged to faster and faster work. The colt is then allowed to a moment and can be turned while the horse is resting. The shoulders should also be washed in warm water at night, rubbed dry, and then washed in water in which white oak bark has been boiled for fifteen minutes, the bark is tongheened and the galling prevented. Colts, particularly, should have their collars well fitted.—American Agriculturist.
